dominating the game from the opening kickoff. Tony Sullivan started the rout on this play by an 85-yard runback for a touchdown. Punchard closed the first half with a lead of 34 - 0. Coach Ed Doherty inserted many of his reserves in the last two periods when Johnson tallied two touchdowns and Punchard came up with one.

By winning this game Punchard also took the "Little Three" title and closed its season with eight victories to one defeat, giving the new coach, Ed Doherty, a fine record for his first year.

Johnson, riddled with injuries all season, entered the game as underdogs. The youngsters put up a good battle and made quite a game of it against the Punchard reserves.

In the battle of statistics Punchard made 10 first downs, gained 304 yards by rushing and com-

What Our Readers Say—

More On Fluoridation

Editor of the Townsman

There are some points in Mr. Lord's letter to the Townsman of Nov. 13 which I would like to explain.

The report of the select committee to investigate the use of chemicals in foods and cosmetics to which Mr. Lord refers asserts that there is no real similarity between chlorination and fluoridation. This conclusion is based on the difference in the immediate action or mechanism of the two procedures, one being used to destroy microorganisms, the other to provide increased resistance to dental decay. The committee overlooks a similarity in principle; namely, the addition of a chemical to drinking water in order to greatly reduce the amount of disease. The narrow concept expressed in the report tends to obscure the fact that the addition of suitable chemicals is a universally accepted procedure for improving the quality of drinking water.

The fact that dental disease, primarily dental caries, was the greatest single cause for the rejection of inductees during the early period of World War II and the fact that every year the American public spends more for the correction of the results of dental caries than for the treatment of any one other disease only emphasize the magnitude of the dental health problem. When the report states that "dental decay is not contagious nor can it be said to constitute a serious danger to health" this would seem to imply that a disease is not a community problem unless it is contagious and fails to recognize the fact that dental caries is the most prevalent disease of mankind.

Mr. Lord makes no mention of the mass of evidence derived from the experience of several million people who have used throughout their lifetime a drinking water with an equal or higher concentration of fluoride than that recommended for fluoridation. The pilot studies cannot be as crucial a test of safety as is the experience in the communities where the fluoridation concentration is many times as high as that being added in the pilot studies such as those in Grand Rapids, Mich., Newburgh, N.Y., and Evanston, Ill. For instance, Bauxite, Ark., has a fluoridation concentration of approximately 14 parts per million. Bartlett, Tex., has about 8 parts per million. These conditions established by nature, not by man, provide the most convincing evidence of the safety of fluoridation at the level of one part per million.

With respect to the aged and individuals with chronic disease, most thorough investigations of the physiologic effects of fluorides have been made where the water contains three to eight times as much fluoride as is being added in the Newburgh study. Several hundred thousand individuals including people of all ages and of varying states of health are included in these groups.

All of the reports that have come both from groups directing controlled fluoridation studies and from groups that have made population surveys in areas where the water supply contains many times the concentration of fluoride that is employed in controlled fluoridation have indicated that the procedure is without hazard.

Mr. Lord states that Mr. Miller, a member of the congressional committee, "finds that the American Medical Association appears to have objections". The American Medical Association did not "urge" adoption of the dental measure but it explained in the hearing that "it was the opinion of the council that this question (of recommendation for or against) should be answered by the dental profession". The American Medical Association's conclusion in the hearing reads as follows: "Fluoridation of the public water supplies in a concentration not exceeding one part per million is non-toxic and its principle is endorsed."

The advantage of fluoridation is that the amount of fluorides in the water can be controlled to a point where staining of the teeth does not occur but at the same time provides for the development of decay resistant teeth.

Chief Dane

The death of Police Chief George A. Dane removes from our midst an upstanding citizen and an able police official.

His unexpected passing comes as a distinct shock to the community in which he lived and to the department in which he had labored so zealously for years.

The reputation for being a "square shooter" which he had gained with jurists, attorneys and brother police officers was not acquired overnight. It was earned through his many years as a patrolman, as a court witness, and as a prosecuting officer, and it was known beyond the borders of his own immediate community.

It was also reflected through the operations of the local department where fair play was a guiding motive of its members in dealing with the public.

One of the finer tributes often paid him was the remark from members of the force that, "He stands behind his men." They knew that in doing their duty they had the support of their chief despite any influences that might be brought from the outside.

Chief Dane lived to learn what many of his fellow townspeople thought of him when only last March several leading citizens sponsored a glowing testimonial to the chief "whose absolute integrity can be held up as an example and inspiration to old and young in all walks of life."

Chief Dane will be greatly missed by his official associates and by the great number of friends in all walks of life who deeply mourn his passing.

High Beam Headlights

There are enough handicaps to night driving without the additional hazard of facing the glare of high beam headlights.

Drive 10 or 15 miles in any direction after dark and notice how many operators there are who will not dip their high lights upon the approach of another car, even in response to a signal.

Most motorists are courteous enough to do this, yet there are still too many who are too busy or too careless or just too inconsiderate of others to comply with this edict of the road.

As one way to reduce the growing number of traffic accidents it may be pertinent to point out that a concerted effort on the part of safety officials of city, town and state could quickly put an end to most of this illegal practice.

AY FINAL TRIBUTE O CHIEF DANE

J. Campbell, O. S. A., pastor as deacon and the Rev. Henry B. Savas, O. S. A., sub-deacon. The very Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, S. A., president of Merrimack college, was seated inside the altar.

At the offertory James E. Sheard sang "Miseremini Mei" and the choir, composed of Louis J. Scanlon, John F. O'Connell and James Sayers, organist, chanted Agnus Dei at the post-communion. Mr. Scanlon sang "O Meritum Passionis" at the close of the Mass and at the recessional Mr. Sheard sang "Let A Pious Prayer Be Said." The funeral was in St. Augustine's cemetery, where Father Smith and Father Campbell conducted committal services.

ATTENTION WIVES & MOTHERS

There are only two kinds of people to whom the FRESHMASTER Food Plan does not appeal - those who will not take the trouble to understand it and those who understand it cannot believe that such a wonderful plan can actually be true. But these are the facts: - FRESHMASTER offers YOU and YOUR family better health through better food at less money than you are currently spending on your food alone and at much greater convenience to you.

HERE IS HOW FRESHMASTER IS ABLE TO MAKE THIS ASTONISHING OFFER:

- 1 FRESHMASTER provides you with a four months' supply of meats, poultry, fish, vegetables, fruits and juices.
- 2 FRESHMASTER provides you with a handsome, modern, upright food freezer.
- 3 All this food is delivered right to your freezer.
- 4 FRESHMASTER makes no profit on food, giving you this food at the same quantity discount prices they pay for it - the savings on food plus the many savings which possession of a freezer afford should more than pay for the freezer over a two year period.
- 5 You may continue to purchase food at the same quantity discount prices for as long as you wish, the savings of course to go into your own pocket.

Does this sound too good to be true? Does this sound as if there must be a catch to it? We agree, but at the same time we tell you that this plan is currently being enjoyed by doctors, dentists, research engineers and - yes - even appliance dealers who are willing to forego their trade discounts for the many advantages which this wonderful plan affords.

Write or phone for the free booklet "A New Way of Life" which outlines the many benefits of this amazing new plan.

One of march. Headed by the Pundard All-Girls' band and including the Phillips academy band and the P.A. Dixieland band, he will be accompanied by a large number of floats entered in the parade by Andover merchants.

On his visit this year he will arrive with him Santason and 60 very lively helpers in unique costumes who will remain with him during the parade.

As soon as the parade starts the Christmas lights strung across Main street and Andover square will be turned on and will be lighted every night thereafter from about 4:30 to 11 p.m., until New Year's day.

The parade will move down Main street to Elm, to Florence to Park and then to the town house where selections will be played by the three bands.

Several more may be added by the time the parade is formed.

At the same time it is expected that all the stores will be decked out in their holiday attire and thus add their lights and holiday decorations to the opening event on the board of trade's Christmas program.

age deal for under $20. The kit includes screwdrivers, chisels, wrenches, handsaw, hacksaw and keyhole saw, hammer, hatchet, plane, pliers, brace and bit and other items.

Fairly new on the market are the small hand sanding and polishing machines. Operated electrically, these machines have a straight-line, back-and-forth action and are a great boon in refinishing furniture, preparing new wood surfaces for finishing and similar jobs. They also can be used for polishing floors, linoleum and automobiles.

And speaking of automobiles, don't forget that virtually any car owner needs or would like to have more accessories for the family limousine.

Back to the small electric tools again, someone you know might like a hand drill. You can get them individually or, if you want to go a little deeper, electric drill kits are available for about $20 or under. This includes a selection of bits as well as attachments for grinding, polishing, buffing, sanding, brushing and so on.

If you're shopping for a boy, remember that a good pocket knife is an economic gift from your point of view, but worth its weight in pearls to a youngster.

There are many other reasonably priced tools that, given by themselves, make excellent gifts. A good plane or a saw, for instance. A brace and bit set. A carpenter's level or a high quality steel tape rule. And for the outdoor man, of course, there's always fishing tackle and hunting equipment.

Information
For Veterans

Q—I have not been awarded compensation or pension by the VA, but would like to know if I can save money by paying my GI insurance premiums once a year instead of monthly.

A—Yes, you can. If you can afford it, you can save 3% interest per year on premiums paid in advance of their due date. In addition you save mailing costs and the annoyance of making out 12 separate checks or money orders, as when premiums are paid each month.

Honesty will succeed as a principle where it fails as a policy.
